A PROVINCIAL SURPLUS

THE BUDGET SPEECH OF HON. JOHN Hart, Minister of Finance., yesterday was an lemitted a statement showing that on current account tre was a surplus of $159,000 for the three-year riod which will end next spring, based upon an-ipated income during the next twelve months.

They do not than $1,300,000, which must be borne by the e and municipalities, with the former assuming han a million of the new liability. Nor do cover sinking fund requirements. These two lis-ies must be added to capital account.

Looking to the future, the Minister proposes a ninet programme, an important part of which will lve negotiations with the federal government. These ve to do with a new allocation of sources of ich Ottawa will be urged to abandon the income tax ield and the taxation of gold, and to assure for the ce the right to collect a sales tax. The provinnat also will seek additional subsidies in a of its claim for better terms. Since the al government has contributed $750,000 as an in payment in that direction it may be expected t the negotiations will be successful. The province will press for the removal of the trade barriers which constitute the greatest incubus upon it, since key make it impossible for it to develop a favorable alance, and impose a drain upon it which forces both overament and industry into heavy borrowings. If ally lowered, British Columbia once more would

Other important points of the programme are the intenance of fair wage standards; the solution of ment on a national basis; relief of the munilities; the extension of social services which again a negotiation with Ottawa in view of the social me which the federal government, pardless of its political stripe, must undertake; the vincial debt. In regard to the refunding proposal Minister submitted a table in which it is shown hat if his programme in this respect were carried out the annual saving for the first five years would be more than $6,700,000. During that period sinking fund requirements on the greater part of the debt would be unnecessary, but they would enter the picture of option during the twenty-five-year period

Mr. Hart is entitled to claim, on the showing he de yesterday, that, subject to the liabilities imposedupon the province by extraordinary conditions, the government is putting its financial house in order. This should improve the provincial credit and help to lay the foundation for his refunding scheme. But the task can remain only half completed until there has been so complete a readjustment of the financial relations between the Dominion and province as will make the province as will apply the province as well apply the enable the provincial government to cope with those disabilities which handicap industry and the provincial and municipal public services, and, in fact, detrimen-tally affect every aspect of provincial progress. The more British Columbia spends in its invitation to visitors the sooner will the province be in a financial position to improve its highways—one of the most important factors in the holiday business.

These are the days of highly-developed automobile artistic design. The owner of the latest model wants a smooth surface upon which to run his car.

British Columbia will be able to split more tourist dollars in the manner set out above when it recognizes in practical fashion the economic soundness of better roads.

GOOD WORK

SEMIOUSLY speaking. Mr. Hart's secount of his first year of stewardship in the treasury was an impressive recital. There is no question that he has made an admirable job of administering the finances of this province under the system and under the restrictions of these times. One does not know offhand of anyone who could do it better or hair as well. You may object to the system. You may think with the CCF, that certhodox finance is breaking down and that Mr. Hart is only making a gallant attempt to eweap back the cosen with a toy broom, but that is sanother matter. Under the existing system—and that is the only system we have or are likely to have for some time—Mr. Hart is a sessoned and able captain of the budget. About his conclusions and his figures there will be endless dispute. His surplus for this year will be called purely fictitious, since it provided no sinking funds on most dour debt and falled to pay unemployments relief out of revenue. He will be clearly shown that in the ment be clearly shown that in the ment year, whatever our current surplus, we are going to stip behind many millions unless we get a readjustment of our revenues. But, after all, one key fact seemed to stand out in the budget, one simple truth that you could get hold of and hang on to—provinciar revenues have stopped slumping and are going up, almost all slong the line. That, whether you all slong the line. That, whether you believe any of the rest of the budget as all, is the most significant pieces of financial information that has come into this House since the start of the depression.

THE PRESBYTERY ARISES!

Has evangelism anything to do with the teaching of Scripture? Perhaps not, for there is the very highest acriptural authority for the use of wine and beer, in restaurants and at weeding feasts, in fact, where-ever such beverages are customary in most came communities. Heaven pre-cerve us from these militant ecclesi-actics.

Victoria Presbytery Criticizes Dismissal of United College Professor

Reinstatement of Professor King Gordon to the staff of the United College of Montreal, as requested by the General Council of the United College of Montreal, as requested by the General Council of the United Church of Canada, was urged in a resolution passed by the Victoria Presbytery searcian;
Professor Gordon was dismissed several mouths ago by college directors, who claimed he introduced political subjects into his teachings of Christmas ethics. He is the son of Raiph Connor, minister and writer. The resolution follows:
"In view of the fact that the board of directors of the United College of Montreal failed to acquiesce in the recommendation of the general council to the effect that Professor King Gordon be reappointed as instructor in Christian ethics;
"And inasmuch as this failure has given validity to the widely-held idea that the taid board had dismissed Professor Gordon on account of his teaching, with the result that the diaquiest throughout the church he increased rather than subdued;
"And inasmuch also, as the failure of the board has established a precedent of rebettion from the control of the general council over its own educational institution;
"Therefore the Fresbytery of Victoria hereby urges the executive of the general council to insist that the will of the church be obeyed, and falling his, that further action be taken which shall free the church from the implications which the present situation creates."

EX-PASTOR HAS 100TH BIRTHDAY

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer London, Peb. 28.—Believed to be the oldest minister of religion in the world, Rev. Matthew God's Canadian Baptist pastor, to-day celebrated his 100th birthday at his boyhood home,
Winsford, near Minehead, Someraet.
Exactly eighty years ago he sailed for Canada from Plymouth, and after three years' training at the college in Woodstock, Ont. was ordained to the ministry. He farmed for some years, however, before organizing churches in Whitewater and Lindsay, and later become superintendent of Baptist missions in the then Northwestern Territories.
Mr. Gold started cycling at the age of sixty and kept it up until two years ago. He attributed his good health and spirits mainly to living a healthy and happy life on the prairies. He attil pursues an old hobby, making walking-sticks.
The little village of Winsford helped him celebrate to-day. The church bells were rung, and there was a public tea at which the distinguished old inhabitant received a presentation.

Me said in part: "The merketing Board at present is a provisional one, and will terminate as soon as the permanent board is established. This will be chosen by ballot, not later than May 81, 1995. The present board are all men from the eastern part of the province (known as Area No. 1), and it behoves you breeders if you want local representation on this board, to act quickly and decisively; otherwise, there is no doubt that the men how acting on the provisional board will be elected as members of the permanent one. Fould Discard B.C. Log Scale

House Turns Down Proposed C.C.F. Amendment to Forest Act

The Legislature yesterday siteracon turned down an amondment to the Forest Act opensored by Ernest E. Winch, C.C.F., who proposed that the province should discard the B.C. log scale method and adopt the Breveton scale which is accepted in other countries.

He claimed the present scale amounted to "just a steal of natural resources." It allowed a greater wastage and did not allow for proper computation of the volume of log. As a matter of fact, 100,000 feet of logs under the Breveton scale was recorded as 46,000 feet under the B.C. scale, which should be accepted by any shipping companies. Furthermore, he said, it permitted logging operators to pay lower royalties than they should and penalized logging operators to pay lower royalties than they should and penalized logging operators to pay lower royalties than they should and penalized logging operators to pay lower continued a readjustment of the whole royalty system were often paid so much per thousand on the logs they cut.

Fremier Pattulio pointed out if the scaling system were changed a readjustment of the whole royalty system unite was more than they could stand.

Hon. A. Welle Grey, Minister of cale was more usan introduction and thon. A. Wells Grey, Minister of Lands, supported this argument and sointed out that no representations had been made to the government either by operators or loggers in the last fifteen months to occure a change. Until the present B.C. cale was adopted there had always been trouble, he said, but now most of those in the industry were satisfied. B. S. McKeen, Liberal, Vancouverpoint Grey, and R. W. Bruhn, Independent, Salmon Arm, agreed with the minister.

It WIII Be 12-Month, Equal-quarter, Director W. E. Har-per Tells Astronomers

per Tells Astronomers

Calendar reform will eventually come and it will probably come in the form of the twite-month, equal-quarter calendar and not the thirteen-month calendar propagandized so emergetically by Moses Cotaworth of Vancouver, W. R. Harper, new director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory told members of the Victoria branch of the Astronomical Society at their lecture meeting held at the T.W.C.A. yesterday evening.

The pressing demand on the part of modern business and for planning will be a leading factor in bringing shout the reform, Mr. Harper indicated.

He elaborated on the variability of Baster, which may occur any time under the present calendar between March 22 and April 23 according to the old Jewish lumar calendar, a leawing thirty-four days.

"There is no question in my mind that Easter will soon be a fixed date," Mr. Harper said. The advantage of a fixed date for Easter are numerous—merchants, manufacturers could plan their business much better, With uniform periods in the school term from year to year it would be easier to plan the curriculum of studies. In the resim of law the courts would meet at a definite date in every year. All movahs feasts depending upon Easter would automatically become fixed, further enhancing these advantages.

Mr. Harper sketched the history of the development of the present calendar through the "Babyloniana Egyptians and Romans, with tinal actitement on the seven-day week and twelve-month year.

In the second helf of the game the whole complexion of things altered, and the Navy got their fighting blood up with a rush. For the greater part of the period they run circles around the storemen, and in the last minutes of the match came very near to winning, when their right wing was left with a perfectly open goal, and Briused to take it.

Beid's goal came almost emetly halfway through the period, after the saliors had been having things very much their own way.

The equalisting point seemed to get the storemen round and they proceeded to give Mundle. Navy goal, averal highly uncomfortable minutes. But Mundle managed his job brilliantly, cleared neatly and quickly and never fumbled once.

the curse off domestic life.

For no matter how fond we are people, we get fed up on them if I have a steady diet of them, day after day, and year after year. They how to to tears because we know every thing they are going to say before they say it. All of their little peculiars ties get on our nerves until we feel that we will acream at the way they rattle a newspaper or drink their coffee or break an egg. The repetition of their little habits drives us creaty, as the continual dropping of water one their heads did the victime of the Inquistion. So we get to the place where we can see nothing but the faults of those with whom we are too closely associated and the only curs for it is separation, to go far enough away to get a real perspective on their virtues.

All of us have known parents and Even mothers should take vacations from their children, for their own sake and for the children's sake. When a woman losse interest in her house-keeping and slape any sort of old meal on the table, and when she begins to mag at the children and say "don's" to everything they do, it simply means that she is surfeited with demesticity, and she needs a change and to get sway from her family. Let her go off for two weeks and she comes back full of pep and new recipes for good dishen, and she thinks the children angels instead of brats, and her home seems the dearest place on earth to her instead of the prison it was before also went away.

As for husbands and wives, it is absolutely necessary that they should separate sometimes if they are to continue to live together in peace to their golden wedding day. The best preventive in the world of divorce is a rullread or steamship tichet, and if more husbands and wives had enough intelligence to take it when indicated it would save many a home from being probes up.

When ever a husband and wife get to the place where they sit up in allence because they know if they speak they will start acmething; when is irritates the wife to madness for her husband to sing in the bath and he feels like choking her because she left the cap off the toothpaste tube; when he growis over the dinner and she acts like a martyr if he drops eigarette ashes on the floor, they should be wise enough to recognize the symptoms and know that the time has come for a breakaway.

A little change from the old routine, seeing new people, hearing new hings, just the slipping of the ball and chain for a while will work a stracts. They will come together refreshed, with a new viewpoint on semesticity and on each other. Try it and see if it doesn't work,

DEAR MISS DIX—by husband and I have been married nine years and have one child. I was a very pretty girl and he was much in love with me when we were married, and we were very happy for the first year. I am a good cook and househeeper and very affectionate, but our trouble is that I have very little education. Don't like to reed, while my husband is a brillian man, has a college degree and a wonderful position. How he is tired of me, never speaks to me except to tell me how dumb I am. Goes out to hanquet and dinners and social affairs and clubs while I sit at home and cry with loneliness, for he is ashamed to take me with him because I wouldn't fit in. Me has no affection for me, for the physical attraction is gone. Tell men to marry in their own class and not break some poor girl's heart by marrying her and then being ashamed of her.

A WOMAN WHO ENOWS.

A william with another.

Answer: When we speak of a man who has outgrown his wife, our sympathy is always for the man who has lost touch with his wife because he has gone forward while she has stayed put. We pity him because he has no companionship at home and think how lonely he must be, tied to a wife who cannot enter into any of his hopes and aspirations, nor understand when he tries to tell her of the secret thoughts that a man reveals only to the woman who is the other half of his soul.

But if we have tears to shed, the one with whom we should bedew them the outgrown wife, the woman who has lost the little hold upon her hunds that her physical appeal once gave her, the woman who knows that her unband is tired of her and achamed of her, not because of anything she has one, but because she is just as God made her and as she was at the time sat he picked her out for a wife.

The man has, at least, the consolution of his success. He has the solution of his finds in the resources of his own mind. He has the accitement of the entertaining society in which he moves, the conversation of witty and intelligent men and women to make up for the talk of a dull domestip wife who knows nothing encept the price of green greceries and what the children are doing and the neighborhood gossip.

But the poor wife has nothing to make up to her for having no companionship in marriage, for her husband is just as boring to him. She is no more interested in his books than he is in her pote and pans. She no more enjoys hearing his highbrow friends discuss the linestein theory than he does hearing his highbrow friends discuss the linestein theory than he does hearing his highbrow friends discuss the linestein theory than he does hearing his highbrow friends discuss the linestein theory than he does hearing him, flower tell about how to cook cabage. If he tries to take her with him, she is miserable, knowing heavelf not wanted and out of place, that people ask her only through politeness not wanted and out of place, that people ask her only through politeness and try to talk to her from a sense of duty. And if her husband goes without her, he flaunts her shame to their world.

So the man who marries a girl who is his intellectual inferior because he is temperarily caught by her pretty face does her a gre wrong than he does himself. He ruins her life more completely than
